Aquatic professionals now have a respected source for the most current information about pool and spa accident and illness prevention with the Prevention Advisor™. This free monthly e-newsletter is published by the National Swimming Pool Foundation® (NSPF®) as a service to pool and spa operators, service technicians, health officials, and other professionals committed to staying abreast of key prevention topics. NSPF understands that industry professionals attend certification courses every five years, and need the most current information on fast-changing technology and new legislation. The Prevention Advisor allows NSPF to keep pool professionals up-to-date on the latest improvements until they are ready to re-certify.

Each month, the Prevention Advisor contains information which focuses on a specific subject such as health and safety information, regulations and legal topics, training opportunities, preventive maintenance tips, research findings, and other important subject matter. To ensure access, professionals should go to <http://www.nspf.org/PreventionAdvisor.html>, and sign up for a free subscription by simply providing contact information. The first edition of the Prevention Advisor was recently launched and upcoming issues are sent in the last week of each month. PDF versions of the Advisor are available at www.nspf.org.

The National Swimming Pool Foundation® (NSPF®), a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization, has been the leading educator of people who care for, manage, or oversee aquatic facilities since 1965. NSPF is dedicated to improving public health worldwide through aquatic education and research. The foundation funds grants to help reduce risk at aquatic facilities and has funded grants to organizations like the CDC and numerous universities. The foundation is the largest funding source for grants to study aquatic health benefits in swimming pools and hot tubs.
